Introduction

Crossword puzzles have been around since the beginning of the twentieth century and have been used in language teaching since the 1950s at least. It is easy to see why, since crossword puzzles are not only a fun way to acquire and revise vocabulary (unlike boring word lists!), they also exercise your brain.

As a language teacher myself (at the EM Normandie business school in France), I have created dozens of crossword puzzles for my students over the years, and this collection brings together some of those, as well as many new ones created especially.

Although some people think of crosswords as being a bit old-fashioned, they have kept up with the digital age and many crosswords can now be found on the Internet or in the form of apps. The good news is that all of the crosswords in this collection are available online for free. So whether you're completing the grids using pencil and paper, a keyboard and mouse, or just your fingers on a touchscreen, happy puzzling!

The Puzzles

The puzzles in this collection are suitable for learners at intermediate level and above (B1+ on the Common European Framework).

Each puzzle is based on a particular theme, and most, if not all, of the answers are connected with that theme. Some of the bigger themes such as Health and Sickness and Irregular Verbs have several puzzles devoted to them so as to reflect their importance in the lexicon. In all, over 2,500 different words are used, most of which are high-frequency items. And, of course, you'll find a lot more related words used in the clues.

All the puzzles use British-style grids, which have more black squares than their American counterparts. British English (BrE) grammar and spelling is used throughout, except where American English (AmE) is indicated. So, ‘travelled’, not ‘traveled’, and ‘colour’, not ‘color’, etc.

To access the online version of the crossword, either click on the computer icon to the right of the grid at the top, or scan the QR code next to it.

Solutions to the puzzles are given at the end of this PDF e-book, as well as separate word lists for each puzzle, and a global word list featuring all the words used in the puzzles in alphabetical order.

Notes for Learners

If you are not familiar with crossword puzzles, don't worry — it's very easy! The aim is to use the clues to find the words you need to fill in the grid. Clues can be either Across (i.e., horizontal) or Down (i.e., vertical). For example, if the clue for 3 down is ‘The back part of a plane (4)’, this means that you are looking for a word with four letters which will fit vertically in the grid with the first letter on the square with the number three in it (the answer is 'tail', by the way).

There are three main types of clue used in this collection. We've already seen an example of the first one: the definition. Another common type of clue involves filling in a gap. For example, ‘Chickens ____ eggs (3)’. Here, you need a three-letter word that will fill the gap in the sentence (the answer is 'lay').
Finally, there are a small number of ‘cryptic’ clues, just to make you think a bit harder. For example, ‘This creature won't win any races! (5)’ in the Animals (2) crossword. Any ideas? The answer is 'snail'. Perhaps you were thinking of 'tortoise', which is a good guess, but doesn't fit as it has too many letters.

If you get stuck (i.e., can’t find the answer), you can, of course, refer to the solution, which you will find at the back of the book. Alternatively, you can consult the word list for the crossword you’re working on, which lists all the answers in order of length. ‘Cheating’ is OK, by the way. The aim is to learn, so don’t hesitate to use a dictionary or online ‘crossword solver’ to help with a particularly tricky clue. OneLook is particularly helpful for finding answers if you already have some letters.

If you’re doing the crossword online, you have even more help options. For example, you can reveal a letter or a word, or check to see if you have the right word. And the complete solution is just one click away — but don’t give in too easily!

Finally, some general tips on learning vocabulary. Research has shown that learning vocabulary in lexical sets (i.e., groups of related words) is more effective than learning words at random, so this crossword collection fits in with that approach. However, don’t stop there. Why not use an online flashcard creator such as Quizlet to create your own lists of words to learn? You can use the word lists at the back of this e-book to start you off, and then add more words as you come across them. And to make sure the words enter your long-term memory, redo the crosswords at regular intervals. The online versions have a timer, so make a note of your time and try to beat it. And be sure to check out the Resources section of this book, where you’ll find lots more great ideas for expanding your English vocabulary with crosswords.

Notes for Teachers

I’m assuming you’ve read the Notes for Learners, so I won’t repeat the information contained in that section, but rather look at some of the different ways that crosswords can be used in the classroom.

Many teachers regard crosswords as a useful filler activity if they’ve got a few minutes to spare at the end of a lesson (I’ve been guilty of that myself!), but there are much more creative ways to exploit them. Here are a few ideas …

Pair or Group Solving

In my experience, if you give each student a copy of the crossword and tell them to work in pairs or groups, they’ll just do it on their own. So, give them a single copy of the crossword to share. This will encourage them to collaborate to solve the puzzle. And why not introduce a competitive element by having a token prize for the group that finishes first? Note that the online versions have a timer which you can use for such competitions.

Jigsaw Crossword

You can do this activity in pairs or groups. If students are working in pairs, give Student A the grid and Student B the clues. They then have to work together to solve the puzzle orally without looking at each other’s material. For groups of three, give one the grid, one the Across clues and one the Down clues. For groups of four, give the extra student the Solution or Word List for that puzzle. He or she acts as a guide, helping out with hints or confirming guesses. This should generate plenty of language for asking for repetition and clarifying, as well as discussion about the possible answers.
